

ABD Privacy Policy and Release of Information to Third Parties

The American Board of Dermatology will collect mail and email addresses in order to communicate with individuals and notify them of important information relating to examinations, registration, certification, maintenance of certification, and other ABD activities that may affect them. The ABD will not disclose personal information to any third parties, except when required by law or as described below for the American Board of Medical Specialties, Measurement Inc./Pearson VUE testing centers, and the American Academy of Dermatology. ABD does not share personal information about its applicants or diplomates with companies or third parties outside of ABD for marketing purposes.

Upon certification and recertification, ABD provides basic biographical and demographic diplomate data to the American Board of Medical Specialties, which publishes The Official ABMS Directory of Board Certified Medical Specialists. The ABMS will directly contact diplomates regarding the publication of diplomate information in its directory. ABD diplomates will communicate directly to the ABMS the personal information that they wish to appear in the directory.

For identification purposes, ABD also provides basic biographic and demographic data to Measurement Inc. (the ABD examination and psychometric organization) and Pearson VUE testing centers regarding candidates taking ABD examinations.

The ABD also shares personal information such as mail and email addresses with the American Academy of Dermatology to help maintain currency and accuracy of diplomate records and so that the AAD can provide materials to diplomates that are designed to assist them in remaining current in their specialty.
